GRAND JURY CRITICS

Whether they realize it or not, the fact remains, that acedulous criticism is being indulged in all over the county at the expense of the members of the Lewis grand jury.

THE REASON

The caustic comment has been aroused by the Mrs. McCord incident; not by reason of her being fired by the supervisors at the demand of the inquisitorial body, but by reason that such action was taken and no explanation given. Naturally it is not up to the supervisors to clarify the matter, they not being the originators of the move, but it is an entirely different matter when it comes to the grand jury.

CAUSE KEPT SECRET

There must have been good cause for the summary dismissal of Mrs. Ruth McCord from the position she had held for a number of years as director of the social service department. We do not believe, knowing the personnel of the body, constituted of fair-minded men and women, that they would lend themselves to any unfair proposal, the result of which would at least cast doubt on the competency of a person occupying a position of public authority.

Yet Mrs. McCord was literally thrown out without any explanation forthcoming from the grand jury. The action must have been based on good grounds and the public was entitled to know those grounds at the time the dismissal took place, and not months afterwards. Under the circumstances it appears, on the surface, that it was in the nature of an ex parte proceeding, although doubtless it was not.

ENTITLED TO KNOW

If we have an unfaithful public servant in our employ, the right and logical thing to do is to get rid of him as expeditiously as possible. Being a public official.

ORR SHIFTED TO NEW SERA PROJECT JOB

Faul Orr, local Communist whose employment in a key position at the SERA headquarters in Richmond has aroused a storm of wrath throughout the county, has been transferred to a new job.

This was admitted by SERA officials yesterday after they had recently on several occasions said that nothing had been done about Orr and instructions were being awaited from the San Francisco office.

GIVEN NEW JOB

It was learned that the man has been transferred from the key position of placement clerk in the local offices to another job. This new position will be with the Richmond recreational facilities project and Orr's duties will be to assist in a check-up now being made of the school children and the use to which they put their spare time.

The fact that Orr was employed by the local SERA headquarters was revealed several weeks ago in an investigation made by a newspaper. At that time the paper charged that Mrs. Violet Orr, local Communist, was charged with forcing the closing by Taylor.

TRouble FEARED

Pickets surrounded the plant during the day and again tonight. Trouble was anticipated when changes of shifts were due and the closing order came shortly before one such shift was slated at midnight.

In a long statement announcing the shut-down, William B. Taylor, vice president of the company said the plant had been closed "until intimidation and coercion" of workers by pickets end.

SHERIFF ON GUARD

The Crockett plant of the company is one of the largest in the world, operating on a 24 hour schedule, manufacturing sugar and sugar products from cane shipped here, chiefly from Hawaii.

Announcement of the closing came after 15 sheriff's deputies had been rushed to the town this afternoon, when 13 men inaugurated a "strike." The walk-out was said to have been occasioned by discharge of 15 men.

Attorney Will Act As Spokesman For League

Contra Costa is to have an active secret body of citizens that will enter into every phase of activity in the county.

From authoritative sources it was learned last evening that a meeting of citizens representing every section of the county was held in Pittsburg on Tuesday evening, and the first steps for the formation of this new body taken.

The name selected for the new organization, is the "Contra Costa Welfare League," and its work will enter into every phase of county government.

At the first meeting there were 32 persons present, and they represented not only industry, labor, but farm and horticultural interests as well.

There is to be no politics connected with the organization, the promotion of good government being the sole object.

A canvass of attorneys and their connections is now being made, and the public sponsor of the Contra Costa Welfare League will be made known as soon as the selection is made.

CONFIDENCE RESPECTED

While the RECORD-HERALD is cognizant of the names of some of those who have enlisted in this new work, it has been pledged to absolute secrecy and this confidence will not be violated.

Suffice it to say that the organization is made up of men of the highest standing in the county.

Post Will Take Off At Dawn On Friday

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 21—UP—Wiley Post, stocky, black-haired Oklahoma flier, will send his tiny Lockheed-Vega monoplane, Winnie Mae, roaring toward the stratosphere at dawn tomorrow in an effort to cross the American continent in less than eight hours.

Post made the announcement tonight after he had brought his machine to earth from its final test flight.

"Everything's jake," the one-eyed globe girder said. "If I get a good wind behind me, I'll make it." Post brought his plane down in a dead stick landing, with a new propeller flattened vertically against the blunt nose of the little craft. "This is the new 'propeller stop' he has been waiting for."

Its purpose is to permit landing on a "belly skid" when he comes

2 BOYS LOST ON HIKE IN HILLS HERE

Two eight-year-old Richmond boys were reported missing in the Berkeley hills by their parents late last night.

The children are: Harold Kerber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kerber of 3320 Walter avenue, Richmond.

Arthur Spatnik, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Spatnik of 3228 Florida avenue, Richmond.

MISSING SIX HOURS

The youths left home at 4:30 yesterday afternoon for a hike. At 10:30 last evening they had failed to return home and the parents of the boys called police. Immediately a broadcast of the descriptions of the two lads was made by KSW, the police broadcasting station.

The Kerber boy is four feet tall, has dark eyes and is of dark complexion. He was wearing a sweater and blue overalls and red shoes. He was bareheaded.

TOOK A LUNCH

The Spatnik boy is four feet eight inches tall, weighs 53 pounds and is also of a dark complexion. He too was wearing blue overalls and a sweater.

According to their parents, the two boys packed a lunch yesterday afternoon and told their parents that they were going for a hike in the hills.

It is believed that the two lads may have lost the trail home in the darkness and that they will be forced to remain in the hills over night. Relief was also expressed that the boys may be heading for the Berkeley area overnight Boy Scout camp in the hills, where several troops of Berkeley Scouts plan to spend the holidays. It is possible, police say, that the two boys planned to "beat" the Scouts to the camping ground.

A searching party may be organized today to take up the hunt for the two lads.

The Well Baby Clinic was held yesterday at Pullman school with a record attendance. Next week the conference will be held at Washington school.

Jury Deliberates Seven Hours; Takes Only Three Ballots

MARTINEZ, Feb. 21.—"Not Guilty."

Such was the verdict rendered by the jury tonight freeing Mrs. Minnie Zimmerman of a charge of murdering her husband, Wesley, ex-police officer of El Cerrito, December 23rd of last year.

It was a tense and dramatic scene in the courtroom when the twelve men and women who had listened to days of evidence and testimony and eloquent argument of counsel, and in whose hands rested the fate of the little, blonde grandmother, filed into the courtroom at 9:45 o'clock, just seven hours, almost to a minute from the time they retired to deliberate upon a verdict.

Judge Thomas D. Johnston, with solemn mien, befitting the dignity of the position he occupies, glanced out over the excited, crowded courtroom and twice warned against any demonstration. Repressed emotion, however, was evident, but when H. O. Watson, of Richmond, the foreman, announced that a verdict had been reached, and the clerk had read the fateful words that set the defendant free, the jurist's admonition was with difficulty, heeded.

Interest In Murder Case Shown Here

Widespread interest in the fate of Mrs. Minnie Zimmerman, charged with the murder of her husband Wesley Zimmerman, was evinced by residents of the city of Richmond last night.

Shortly after four o'clock yesterday afternoon a barrage of telephone calls on the offices of this newspaper was started. Up to a late hour last evening calls at the rate of a score or more every 15 minutes were being received, asking, "What has happened to the Zimmerman jury?"

This interest has been manifested throughout the trial, with copies of newspapers "covering" the story being eagerly sought and read by residents throughout the county. In addition to local telephone calls received last night, several out-of-town persons called to inquire about the case.

At Martinez early in the evening a crowd packed the courtroom, waiting for the verdict in the case.

Sewing Project Materials Are Purchased Here

For the first time since the inception of the county-wide SERA sewing project in Contra Costa County, it has been possible for the Richmond Headquarters SERA staff to purchase materials for this project in Richmond, according to an announcement by Fred Day area SERA auditor.

The materials, which included chambray, sheeting, pillow-slip material, outing flannel and denim, to be made into sheets, pillow-slips, print dresses, and children's overalls, was awarded to bidders from Albert's department store, Putney's department store and the Penney store, all three located in Richmond. Approximately $2,000 was appropriated for this purchase, which will keep from between 30 and 50 women busy for some time. The finished articles will be turned back into the relief load of the county.

Release Denied To Dynamite Shipper

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 21—UP—The State Supreme court today denied the petition of Henry A. Iles, San Quentin convict seeking release on a writ of habeas corpus. #### Eagle Scouts To Form Knights Of Dunamis Council

A preliminary meeting of Eagle Scouts was held at the City Hall last evening to determine if it was feasible to organize an organization to be known as the Knights of Dunamis. This is a service body for the Eagle Scouts, which tends to hold the interest of the older boys, co-operate with Scout councils, and aid troops that are in need of reorganization.

Don Seaman, executive is to ascertain if it is feasible to organize a separate body for this city, or whether it will be necessary to join with the Berkeley body. The next meeting will be held on March 6, and an appeal will be made for all Eagle Scouts to be present.

Edgar Gehrbart acted as temporary chairman of the meeting last evening.

HAS ALL THAT KIESEL HAD THEN SOME

BERKELEY, Feb. 21.—(UP)—The man with whom Bob Kiesel, known as the "Berkeley Bullet" and generally acknowledged as the country's best sprinter last year, refused to race will be presented by Coach Brutus Hamilton at the University of California this spring.

He is George Anderson, 19-year-old sophomore who last year bucked up marks of 9.4 in the century dash, equalling the world's record, and 21 flat in the 120.

Anderson has everything that Kiesel had, minus the Kiesel temperament. Kiesel, according to his coaches, always seemed to get in a victim of circumstances in being endowed with a perfect sprinting physique and ran because his parents, his coaches and his school wanted him to.

Kiesel, however, always gave everything he had in a race, and was graduated last year with only one defeat marring his record, and with marks of 9.5 and 20.3 on the books. As a sophomore, he was beaten in the 100 by Frank Wyoff of the University of California in the 1933 T. C. A. A. at Berkeley.

George will race anywhere, at any time, he is in condition, and although being beaten would be rather an unique experience for him, the idea does not worry him in the least.

Just under six feet tall and weighing 155 pounds, 170 pounds, Anderson has an ideal sprinting build. Long, powerfully muscled legs and a smooth stride give him a straight-ahead drive that has proved unbeatable in his college career so far.

It is hard to conceive of a person who has equaled the world's record in one race being even greater, potentially, in another, but Hamilton believes that Anderson's best race will be the 220.

The long distance will enable the young sophomore to hit his full stride and when he is strong enough to put on the pressure for the entire race Hamilton looks for a new world mark for the 220.

If Anderson is ever to be known by the rather unoriginal title of "the fastest human" Hamilton says, it will probably be due to his performance in the 220, as the 100 mark has already been hammered down to a near ultimate.

Chief competition for Anderson this year will come from his own teammate Morris (Mashy) Pollack, U. S. C. A. sprinter, "Red" Abbott, Art Crane and Fay Draper, and Ray Dean, junior college transfer at Stanford.

Jimmy La Valle, University of California at Los Angeles 44 and 220 star, and Al Krieb of U. S. C. A., will be lined up against the Berkeley pair in dual competition this spring.

ROOSEVELT TO TAKE HAND IN CONGRESS ROW

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(UP)—The fires of rebellion among House Democrats over patronage matters were quenched tonight with President Roosevelt agreeing to take a personal hand in the dispute.

Representative Adolph Sabath, D. Ill., a member of a House group which discussed the situation with the White House told a Democratic caucus that the chief executive had expressed his willingness to intervene.

COMPLAINTS MADE
The rebellious Democrats had two complaints:

1. That too many good Federal jobs were being given to Republicans.
2. That bureau chiefs and assistants are discourteous to Congressmen.

TO MAKE PROBE

Sabath reported to the caucus that the President would appoint a man in each government department to take care of Congressional requests. He would, in effect, be the contact man between the department and Capitol Hill. This is intended to remove present bad feeling that exists.

On the second issue—jobs for deserving Democrats—however, Sabath indicated Mr. Roosevelt had announced his previously determined stand that the best men would be appointed to federal jobs regardless of their political affiliations.

EL CERRITO, Feb. 21.—The Washington's birthday program at Fairmont school yesterday opened with the salute to the flag and the singing of America by the school.

Marlene Bunn of the 6th grade gave a reading entitled "The Greatness of Service." This was followed by a song "Flag of Our America" by children of Low 1st, High 1st, Low 2nd, High 2nd, and Low 3rd grades.

A presentation of first prize of $1.00 for the best essay in the local contest sponsored by the Auxiliary of American Legion Post No. 319 on the subject of "Our American Flag" was made to Eugene Salmon of Harding second, and Dorothy Meyer of Fairmont and another prize for an essay in this contest to Dorothy Meyer.

A beautifully framed copy of the United States Constitution presented to the school in Richmond last Thursday night by Richmond Post No. 10, American Legion, was accepted at that time.

This was followed by "The Story of Our Flag" by Nicolli Fiorentino and a poem called "My Creed" by Phillips Caskey. Ten boys of the 6th grade gave a skit called "Who."

Jean Ford gave a resume of the life of Washington. The program ended by the presentation to the school of the copy of the United States Constitution which was given by the Richmond Legion Post No. 10, Edith Richards, president of the class, accepted the copy of the constitution from the Post when it was presented recently and during yesterday's program she formally presented it to Harding school in behalf of the Legion.

In the afternoon Miss Knoble's class put on its regular monthly program in which every child participated. The program is prepared entirely by committees of children, and consists of music, vocal solos and piano playing, poems some of them original, duets, recitations and skits.

These programs are proving very beneficial to the children because of the fact that each one is required to take part in every one of them. They are getting used to appearing upon the stage in public. Yesterday's program was appropriate to Washington's birthday.

SEX ANGLE INJECTED DEATH TRIAL

SAN JOSE, Feb. 21.—Sex and science drew leading attention of opposing counsel today as attorneys sought a jury to hear the trial of David Lamson on charges of murdering his wife, Allene Thorpe Lamson.

Defense attorneys, questioning prospective jurors injected the sex angle. They dwelt on the need of scientific proof to convict Lamson, also, as the laborious task of selecting open minded jurors went on through the day.

JURY NEXT WEEK

It appeared by nightfall that there was little likelihood the jury would be completed before next week, with a possibility that an extra panel of ventrismen may have to be called. At mid-afternoon 68 of the 150 names originally called for the trial remained, with both defense and prosecution still holding the majority of their preemptory challenges.

RAISES QUESTION

"Have you the idea that because a man eats dinner with a woman there is something illicit in that relationship?"

Lamson flushed as he heard the question. It apparently referred to anticipated state attempts to prove that Lamson, former sales manager of the Stanford University Press, shared a romance with Mrs. Sarah Kelly, Sacramento divorcee.

SEX QUESTION

"Will you apply science against all possible sex stories, acceptation only matters of science," queried McKenzie, after drawing the first question. Again Lamson objected.

"Will you presume that David Lamson is sexually and morally innocent of wrong doing that he always treated his wife as an honorable man should," McKenzie finally asked. The question was allowed.

NO COMPROMISE

Aside from this brief interlude the day passed monotonously in the routine of selecting a jury. The additional jolt to the proceedings came at the opening of the session when McKenzie openly stressed that defense wants no compromise in the case — either acquittal or new sentence that Lamson must have. Lamson was granted the second trial by the State Supreme Court, which reversed his conviction.

"We want no compromise — no verdict of guilty with a recommendation for leniency, no reducing of the charge to manslaughter," said McKenzie. "If a reasonable doubt exists, David Lamson is entitled to acquittal." Lamson nodded as McKenzie made the statement.

BRUNO RICHARD HAUPTMANN, huddled to guards, white-faced and trembling, as he was led from the courtroom at Flemington, N. J., after hearing the jury brand him a baby killer and listening to Justice Trenchard set his execution date for the week of March 18. He collapsed in his cell shortly after this picture was taken.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The NRA board is on its last legs.

Its members, personally or friendly terms, are as far apart as the poles on policies and plans. On almost every important issue before them they have split wide open and the President has had to step in and make the decisions. This was the case in the cigarette code. It was even more so in the renewal of the automobile code.

As a result, the work of the recovery agency has fallen into a state of confusion and uncertainty. The morale of its personnel has sunk to zero.

That a drastic reorganization of NRA administration is imperative is conceded by all in the inner council—except one, "Associate President" Don Richberg.

The board idea was Richberg's baby. He persuaded the President to turn to it instead of the one-man rule which General Johnson counseled.

Junking of the Board, therefore, would be a serious blow to Richberg. So he is vehemently denying that it has proven a flop and is insisting that it be retained.

But the handwriting is on the wall. And none know it better than the board members themselves.

Three of the five—Chairman S. Clay Williams, Arthur E. White, and Sidney Hillman—are making no secret that they intend quitting just as soon as they can conveniently do so.

UNHAPPY
Donald R. Richberg is very unhappy.

He is not talking about resigning, but to friends who call on him he inveighs at great length and with much bitterness against his former laborate associates who blame him for the renewal of the auto code.

Above all, Richberg resents what General Hugh Johnson has been saying about him in the Saturday Evening Post.

To a recent visitor he exclaimed:

"Those articles justify the letter I sent to the publishers warning them about what Johnson would say about me."

YACHTING LADY
A shake-up of personnel in the government of Puerto Rico is impending. But it awaits one thing the eccentricity of woman.

The shake-up provides that Benjamin J. Horton, now attorney general of Puerto Rico, shall be collector of internal revenue; that Jesse Whittemore, now collector of internal revenue, shall be transferred to some cushy berth in the United States.

But Mrs. Whittemore is not anxious to be transferred. San Juan is a delightful place. Furthermore, the collector of internal revenue enjoys the use of a beautifully equipped government launch.

"The trouble with the lady," remarked a man high in the government, is that she is a collector of internal revenue. Made up of big business men, the two groups have no more relationship with a broad smile, "is the yacht."

FARM LABOR BOARD
A new kind of labor board soon may be in operation.

It would seek to provide more effective protection for southern share-croppers under the cotton control program and in general enforce the labor provisions of AAA crop control contracts.

Hundreds of complaints have been received by the Agriculture Department from tenant farmers charging that plantation owners are driving them from the land and forcing them to work as day laborers.

This is contrary to the Cotton Acreage Reduction Act which specifically provided that owners shall "permit all tenants to continue in the occupancy of their homes 'rent free' for the years 1934 and 1935."

Henry Wallace is in a much more strategic position to enforce the labor provisions of this law than NRA and Labor Board officials having jurisdiction over Section 7a.

He can resort to the simple expedient of withholding the Government's check to the plantation owner until he complies with the law.

PASSIVE DIPLOMACY
Genial Tom Hewes, special assistant to Secretary Hull, ran into the State Department press room looking for a thesaurus.

"I want," he said, "a good word to use instead of dynamic."

"Dynamic is so rare in diplomacy," he continued, "that no one seems to know any synonym for it."

NEAT JOB
You have to hand it to Secretary of Commerce "Uncle Dan" Roper.

What it takes to get his name on the front page he has in a big way. Last week he demonstrated it with one of the smoothest publicity stunts seen in Washington in many moons.

That is the real low-down, behind the widely-fanned story that General Robert E. Wood, president of Sears Roebuck & Co., was appointed "principal" adviser to the President on the allocation of the $1,500,000,000 work-relief fund.

The real fact is that Roosevelt did not appoint the Chicago businessman to anything.

What appointing was done was performed by "Uncle Dan" and the agency to which General Wood was named has no official status and will have nothing to do with deciding how the employment-creating money will be spent.

What actually happened was this:

General Wood was named chairman of a committee of the "Business Advisory and Planning Council." Both the committee and the Council are brain-children of Roper.

DUST STORMS SWEEP MIDDLE WESTERN AREA

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 21.—UP—Winds ranging up to 60 miles hour churned up blinding dust storms on a 500-mile front today, grounded airplanes and covered half a dozen States with a choking pall.

Black clouds whirled up from the prairie wheat lands, obscuring the sun. Some early wheat roots were denuded. Humans and livestock suffered unusual discomfort. The storm was reminiscent of early spring disturbances last year.

COLD WAVE
Position of a sub-zero cold wave in western Canada and an area of record breaking spring heat over Missouri were blamed for the weather freak. Crop damage was estimated as high as 25 percent in some localities.

The wind struck most violently in southern Wyoming. A velocity reading of 66 miles an hour was taken at Pine Bluff, a few miles from Cheyenne. The storm extended with lessened force to the southeast as far as the Texas-Panhandle.

DUST STORM
In Kansas City, where the mercury rose to 75 degrees, a high point for the year, and an all-time record for February 21, the sun set in a glow of red, induced by the dust-filled air to the west.

Similar weather conditions marked last year's freak spring, which cost winter wheat farmers millions of dollars. Two record-breaking warm spells were recorded in February a year ago. Dust storms followed all summer.

HOLLYWOOD
Richard Day, designer of the set times and the backdrops for all 20th Century productions under the sponsorship of Darryl F. Zanuck, has gone to New York.

He will sail for an extended holiday in Britain and on the Continent, where he intends to make a study of the newest developments in scenic design and construction.

Day will next be represented by the special backgrounds he has designed for "Polles Bergerre," the musical extravaganza starring Maurice Chevalier with Ann Sothern and Merle Oberon. All 20th Century productions are released thru United Artists.

The Hon. Captain Richard Norton, producer of British and Dominion pictures, is here on a short visit to the United States.

Captain Norton brings with him the completed print of "Brewster's Millions," the most ambitious production by British and Dominion, and one of the most expensive pictures to come out of the English studios. Jack Buchanan and Lili Damita are co-starred in the film, which is reported as an extravagant musical version of the famous play by Winchell Smith and Byron Ongley.

"Brewster's Millions" represents another important item in the interchange of screen talent between England and Hollywood. Thornton Freeland, maker of "Flying Down to Rio" directed "Brewster's Millions" and was photographed by Bernard MacGill, one of America's ace cameramen.

While the women gossip over the back fence about their plans for the weekly get-together at the Community Center, the men consider the sterner things in life. They confer with Archie Anderson, the newly-elected chief of the volunteer fire department. Until the town can afford a siren the man with the strongest lungs will shriek the warning. But nothing else will be left to chance.

After a solemn conference, the fire-horses to the hand-drawn fire engine have been allotted their places, the wielders of the shiny new axes know their duties and the keepers of the brass nozzles know who to yell at when the fire loses its face. There is only one point of discussion, and the fire chief will probably settle this himself, and that is who will wear the fancy new asbestos suit.

Absent-minded public enemies who drift into town will be given short shrift, according to Howard Vallendingham, a former marine. Six years with hoisterous, fighting marines in Guam and China have given this sunny-jawed sergeant the talents and determination to keep the situation in hand. With a faint reminiscent smile he looks down at his faded stripes and dismisses his numerous professional encounters with "these river hogs" as "mere phony stuff."

Defiant Monarch

EMPEROR HAILE SELASSIE, ruler of Ethiopia, who was reported to have massed from 200,000 to 800,000 troops to repel Italian invasion, after clashes between Italian soldiers and the Emperor's tribal chieftains at Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

CLYDE COMES TO LIFE AFTER LONG SLEEP

In a quiet spot of land lying on San Francisco bay, a rehabilitation is going on, a rehabilitation of homes and humans. It is the town of Clyde, which under SERRA and FERRA supervision is being brought back to life after a long sleep.

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT

By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—When at the Hauptmann trial Dr. John J. Connel, held on the witness stand, the Bronx was "the most beautiful borough in the world," he offered material for what could be very juicy controversy among the citizens of this town.

The right New Yorker, of course, will describe the city simply as Manhattan and four suburban appendages. But even the unprejudiced eye will probably conclude that the main island borough leaves the members some-what behind when it comes to a test of beauty.

The Borough of Brooklyn has fine spots like the Heights and the Shore Road, and the Borough of Queens has the Atlantic Ocean and Long Island Sound.

Yet these two boroughs, which shelter more than half the city's population, are built on a predominantly flat and monotonous level. There are no striking views, no hills, no mountains. In every direction the rather disheartening panorama of low-story dwellings stretches in a depressing rows almost as far as the eye can reach. Even local residents will be hard pressed to detect the aesthetic attractiveness of thousands of plain, brick-red houses unrelieved by anything except dull-colored roofs and dead-white filling stations.

A much better argument can be put up for the Borough of the Bronx and of Staten Island. The Bronx, from its northern edge, has the same kind of beauty that has made Manchester famous. The hills here are well within the borough, and the view east and west between the Mount Vernon and Yonkers heights across green valleys that brick and mortar have not quite filled up, is truly impressive, and may well compete almost with the Palisades, Staten Island, the smallest of the boroughs, is also beautifully proportioned. It has almost a mountain for its nucleus and with the ocean stretching at her feet it is not a locale that can be too easily dismissed.

Nevertheless, Manhattan would seem to be the eventual winner in a comparative test of beauty of a city need not be always natural beauty, and here Manhattan has her timeless towers by day and her myriad lights by night. But if it is a test of nature, Manhattan Island has her harbor and her two rivers, particularly the Palisades. The view up the Hudson from any point north of Fifty-ninth street is certainly a more resplendent sight than anything offered by any of the other boroughs.

To travelers on incoming European liners Brooklyn offers only a sandy beach along the ocean front, whereas Manhattan presents the majestic spectacle of the massed downtown skyscrapers rising like some fairy apparition out of the sea. The Bronx offers a beautiful scene along the Harlem river near University Heights, but how can this compare with the marvelous splendor of the George Washington bridge across the Hudson to the towering Palisades, with the rolling mountains of the upper river spreading out magnificently to the north as far as they eye can see?

Dr. Connel's pride in his native borough is understandable, but there are too many witnesses who will take the stand for Manhattan and drown out his testimony.

Mary Astor Deft On The Typewriter

Mary Astor has depended upon by her associates at Warner Bros. studios to furnish them with a surprise at regular intervals.

During the making of "The Case of the Howling Dog" which comes to the Richmond Theater today, Miss Astor astonished the entire company, from Alan Crosland, the director, down to the property boy, by demonstrating that she is a full-fledged performer on the typewriter.

During sensational court trial in which she is charged with killing her husband, one of the legal documents used had been mislaid. It was necessary to type-write the contents of another form, a job which, in such cases usually falls to the script clerk.

In this instance, the script clerk happened to be busy. Mary Astor stepped forward with the remark: "Let me do it."

And while Crosland, Warner Williams, Allen Jenkins, Helen Trenholme and the rest of the players present in the courtroom stood around in amazement, Mary ran the words into the script clerk's typewriter and with professional speed and deftness, rattled off line after line.

DRESSMAKER'S DAUGHTER

By James Noble Gifford

When Carol Morris' mother, a small-town dressmaker, suddenly dies, Carol sets out for New York to seek a career, though John Morris, who is in love with her, tries to dissuade her. On the train a fat young man, Randolph Sterling, tries to make friends with her, but she rebuffs him. In New York, she gets a job as a show girl, but quits when she learns that Sterling owns the show and had arranged for her to be his secretary in a department store. John comes to New York to ask her to come back home and marry him. He scoffs at her ambition to have a career. Angry, she turns him down.

CHAPTER IX
When Carol reached her room that night, she regretted the vehemence with which she had answered John. She was sorry if she had hurt his feelings. But he had stung her by scoffing at her belief in her star, and making light of her ambition to have a career of her own. He had laughed when she had told him that she meant to succeed—as though he didn't think she could. Well, she would show him!

Besides, it was unthinkable to go back to Morristown. The round of parties with which the girls there amused themselves now seemed silly to her—though she had once enjoyed them as much as any one. Those Morristown girls led such futile lives. Even Bette Silvers and her crowd were more sensible—and were stouter friends, too.

Yet she didn't want to be pals with the show girls, either. She wanted different friends altogether—people who were doing things and getting along in the world. People who helped her in success because they were steadily mounting toward it. New York, of all places, must be full of such people.

THE NEXT morning, Carol was up a full half hour before her usual time, singing as she dressed. It was good to be sure just what you wanted to do and get out bravely for that end. It simplified life and so made it happier.

She was smiling as she got into the elevator, and the old colored operator beamed in response. Carol liked him because he reminded her of Caleb.

"You look happy this morning, Miss Morris."

"I am happy. I like to hear you say that. There aren't many ladies look happy this time of day."

There was a snap to the air this morning, and the sun was shining brightly. Even the subway ride downtown seemed less annoying to Carol this morning.

When she reported for work, Miss Vaughn greeted her with a smile.

"You're to report to Mrs. Brundage today, Miss Morris. You know where."

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By C. N. CHRISMAN, M.D.

Alcohol Aids Body in Some Ways, But Mostly Its Effects Tend to Be Harmful

ETHAL alcohol is formed by the splitting up of sugar during the fermentation of fruit juices or malted grain. The most common forms in use are beer, containing from one to two percent of alcohol, and whisky from forty to fifty percent.

Much has been said and written about the effects of alcohol on the human system. It is said to aid digestion, to stimulate the perceptions, permit a person to do more and better work, to improve the circulation. Also that it poisons all the organs, dulls the brain, ruins the digestive system, and is altogether harmful, all depending on the individual viewpoint of the person talking.

What does science say about it? Thomas A. Edison said, "I have better use for my brain than to poison it with alcohol. To put alcohol in the human brain is like putting sand in the bearings of an engine."

In 1853, Dr. William Beaumont had the rare opportunity of directly looking into the stomach of a soldier, who had an unhealed gun shot wound of the stomach. After an ordinary amount of liquor was taken, the inside lining of the stomach looked inflamed and an unusual amount of fluid was poured out. This fluid diluted the alcohol and lessened its irritating effects. Because of this increase in fluid poured out it was considered that a little liquor before or during meals aided digestion, but it has been found that the fluid poured out is different from the ordinary digestive fluid and did not aid digestion.

ALCOHOL taken before meals increases the appetite, but aids the digestion very little. Much has been said about the effects of alcohol on the liver. A chronic inflammation of the liver called cirrhosis is much more common among chronic alcoholics than among non-alcoholics, but we have not been able to produce cirrhosis in animals with prolonged use of alcohol. Alcohol interferes with the normal working of the liver.

Experiments to study the effects of alcohol on the heart show that it has the same effect as fatigue and the organ dilates more than the normal heart doing the same work.

The most pronounced effect of alcoholic drinks is on the nervous system. Experiments have shown that when alcohol comes in contact with nerve cells it dulls their sensitiveness. For a test, an ordinary draftsman's compass was used with the legs spread is placed on the skin, where the subject cannot see them. The standards are moved closer and closer together till he can no longer distinguish two points.

Then he is given a small dose of alcohol and in a few minutes it is found that this space of sensibility must be much larger; showing a dulling of the sense of touch. During the late war, the story is told of a German seaman who was noted for his ability to see objects at night when others could see nothing. One night at mess he drank a ten ounce glass of beer and immediately found that his ability to see in the darkness was gone. He drank no more beer and his ability to see in the dark returned.

AUTOMOBILE clubs and safety councils have been interested in many and varied tests in which the effect of alcohol was measured. By means of electrical timing and recording devices, the number of times a driver swerves his wheel at varying speeds from a certain line can be determined. The records are made before liquor is taken, and similar tests repeated after the driver has taken one and one-third ounces of alcohol and again after double the dose. With the small dose, the efficiency to keep in line was reduced by a third and the larger dose doubled the liability.

Other things were studied as caused by the driver's feelings. With a little alcohol the distances became distinctly more distant. He did not notice things except those directly in front of his eyes. He thought he was driving better and easier than when he was sober. He was more talkative and less observant. The brain, by which self-control is exerted and judgment is controlled, is more sensitive to alcohol than the other organs.

Guide to Charm

TUB STILL BEST FOR A THOROUGH SUD SCRUBBING

By JACQUELINE HUNT

EVEN though you are a shower enthusiast, you should indulge in a special tub bath at least twice a week. Many of you will want to make the warm tubbing a daily part of your beauty program, and there is no better prescription for a clear, youthful skin, sparkling eyes and rosy lips than a weekly tubbing.

Softened water is preferable and for this purpose there are fragrant bath salts, bath essences, bicarbonate of soda, borax and perfumed starch. You will need a big bath brush, too, and plenty of bland, thick suds. The skin that is healthy and lovely is kept that way by keeping the pores free from waste material.

Determine the most satisfactory things for your bath by experimenting. If a brush seems to irritate your delicate skin, then use a thick wash cloth or a bath mitt filled with a mixture of soap and herbs, or what is still newer, vegetable sponges that exercise and cleanse your skin.

Only you can determine the time of day that is most satisfactory for your beauty bath. If you have some time free in the afternoon, then take your cleansing, relaxing bath combined with a facial and have a nap afterwards. Then you will be sparkling and lovely for your dinner date.

If you have more time in the morning, then take your warm bath then, but be sure to rub down with bathing alcohol or a delicate scented eau de Cologne or toilet water to "pick you up" and keep you from feeling drowsy the rest of the day. If you expect to go out soon after the bath, be extra careful about the rub down and apply a soothing hand lotion to arms, shoulders, neck and legs to prevent chapping.

All of you know what a blessing the warm tubbing just before bedtime can be. It not only cleanses but relaxes nerves and muscles and encourages sleep. In the winter it is wise to massage cold cream or olive oil into special areas like the elbows, ankles and calves either before or after taking your bath.

The final luxury of the warm bath is the dusting of bath powder. It is a good idea to have all of your bath preparations of one fragrance if possible. You may have to stop around some before you find exactly what you want but the pleasure of knowing everything is just right is worth it. Have your bath salts, oils and dusting powders with a very light, delicate fragrance that will not interfere with your perfume.

For those who must take their cleansing in a hurry the warm shower is the answer. Rub your skin first with a soft, dry brush to loosen particles of dead cuticle and dust and arouse the circulation. Turn on the shower and get your skin thoroughly wet, then use a long enough to scrub the body thoroughly and soap. Step back into the full spray and rinse away the soap, letting the water run as cool as you can stand it.

Then take a cologne rub down and dust with bath powder. You will feel grand.

Prospect of an All-Woman Symphony Orchestra Centers Interest on Antonia Brico, Its Guiding Light

AN all-woman symphony orchestra of eighty for the playing of serious music is something unique for the United States, but one such is in process of formation now, and it will be directed by a woman, too—Antonia Brico, of New York and California. Very few of the gentler sex have appeared in orchestras, except for occasional women harpists. The prospect of hearing and seeing skinned drummers and tuba players blasting out "The Ride of the Valkyries" has caught the fancy of the music world.

Miss Brico, of course, is the moving force of the orchestra. She has studied expressly for conducting, which is a different case from that of Ethel Leginska, who has been conducting in Europe for a number of years. The latter was a pianist first. Of Dutch-Italian parentage, Miss Brico, when a child, used to sit on a park bench in Oakland, Cal., and listen to Paul Stienand's band. It stirred musical ambitions within her, which her foster parents aided. They sent her to New York to study under Sigmund Stojowski. Later she returned to the West, and went through the University of California. Still later she studied for five years under Dr. Karl Muck, Wagner expert and one-time conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Her first success came in Berlin, when she conducted the Berlin Symphony Orchestra. Then she gave a series of concerts in the Hollywood Bowl. In 1933 she organized an orchestra in Westchester County, N. Y., to give concerts at popular prices. There were five women in it. Perhaps this is what brought the idea for the all-woman orchestra, for it wasn't long before she came up with strong sponsorship and eighty feminine players. They have been rehearsing for some time, and it won't be long before they'll be hearing them.

A sartorial touch of interest is added in Miss Brico's conducting costume. She appears on the podium in a long-sleeved black velvet blouse, a white vest, and black skirt. This will probably become a standard costume for women conductors and players.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "Can you please tell me why I cannot find a hat that is becoming? My face is oval, features good and I wear a long bob. Mittl."

I believe that the trouble lies with your long bob. Most of the hats the past season were designed for the off-the-neck collars with curls high on the side of the head. Naturally these hats look silly with a long bob. There are two types of hats that should be becoming to you, however. One is the soft mannish type that you can cook over one eye and pull well down in the back, and the other is the hat with a soft off-the-face brim that is fairly long at the sides. Always be careful to keep the ends of your long bob softly curled since straggly ends are a problem under any type hat.

QUESTION: "Can you tell me if a nourishing cream is the same as a tissue cream or softening cream?"—Mrs. McNier.

The tissue cream usually contains ingredients that tend to stimulate the circulation. They are sometimes slightly astringent, too, and are good for the sloughy skin or the skin whose tissues have become lax. The so-called nourishing cream, lubricating creams and softening creams are just about the same. They are softened to soften or lubricate the skin and replace some of the natural oils dried up or removed by washing.

MODES AND MANNERS

QUESTION: "Ours is to be a small, intimate wedding. How should our friends and relatives who are not invited be informed that the event has taken place?"—D. S. F.

ANSWER: You should be prepared to mail out engraved announcement cards on the date of the marriage. This is an important detail which many young couples overlook during the exciting weeks before the wedding. Announcement cards should be ordered several weeks in advance of the date of the wedding.

QUESTION: "When a divorcee is to be married for the second time, is it in order for her father to give her away?"—Mrs. B.F.M.

ANSWER: It is quite correct for him to repeat the performance.

Canned Fruits and Juices Make Off-Season Jams Easy

By JUDITH WILSON

AFTER the bountiful feasts of Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year's and Valentine's Day, you are apt to find the shelves of your jelly cupboard nearly bare. Yet it is several months before fresh fruits will return to the market. You needn't be without these handy delicacies, however, as long as the citrus fruits, cranberries, canned and dried fruits and bottled fruit juices are available.

Jellies and jams have many practical uses—as garnishes for sandwiches, for flavoring for beverages, desserts and relishes. To renew your supply, buy three or four bottles of commercial fruit pectin, canned pineapple and grapefruit juice, tomato juice and your favorite dried fruit. Here are recipes for unusually tempting jellies, jams and relishes.

Pineapple-Mint Jelly
Measure two cups unwetted, pineapple juice into a saucepan with one-half cup lemon juice and three and one-half cups granulated sugar. Add enough green coloring to make the jelly the desired shade and bring the mixture to a boil over the hot test fire. Add one cup fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Bring to a full rolling boil for one-half minute. Remove from the fire and add two teaspoons mint extract, skin and pour into clean hot glasses. Cover immediately with a thin layer of melted paraffin and when cool, pour on a second layer, rolling the glass so the edges are well sealed.

Orange Jelly
Measure one cup orange juice two cups granulated sugar and one-half cup lemon juice into a large saucepan and bring to a boil over the hottest fire. Add one-half cup pectin at once stirring constantly. Then bring to a full boil for one-half minute. Remove from the fire, skin and pour quickly. Cover immediately with a thin layer of paraffin. This jelly is delicious with crisp buttered toast for the afternoon tea and it makes a grand jelly cake filling. Cover the top and sides of the cake with an orange-butter frosting. This recipe makes four six-ounce glasses.

Cranberry Relish
Wash and pick over one pound cranberries and put through the meat grinder. Puree one large orange thinly, putting the rind in the food chopper, and then go over the orange again to remove all of the white covering. Remove the seeds and put the orange pulp and the outer rind through the grinder. Add two cups sugar and mix with the cranberries. That which isn't used at once can be sealed in sterilized glasses and covered with paraffin.

Dried Apricot Jam
Cover two pounds dried apricots with three and one-half cups water and the juice of two lemons. Cover and let stand four

BOY'S LAZINESS MAY BE DUE TO GLAND TROUBLE

By IRENE VAIL

New York — With standing coat collars on their way out there is no necessity of clinging to the hat whose back clings to the head and takes up no room. Brims are beginning to sprout again after the time-honored tradition of spring. Some hats, in fact, have two brims instead of one—or, to be more exact, a double brim.

If you care not for bonnets in any form, how about the new berets and toques? It hardly seems possible that there could be such a thing as a new beret. Berets must be exhausted, you think. But it isn't. From the over-sized berets of the winter over ideas have sprung, and I think you will like them. If not, there are toques draped with the high point in the front, or done in other ways, and there are sailors of the Breton variety; all of which shows that milliners are bountifully supplied with ideas in hats of all sizes and shapes. The lowered crown has momentarily lead on the others.

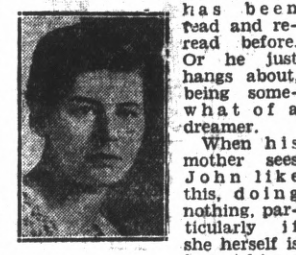

Sketched today are woolen models which are done in the modern manner. At the upper left—a capelet attached so that it forms sleeves. It is crocheted and worked in one straight piece, in light blue woolen yarn.

At the lower left—a hand-knitted woolen bed jacket with flared sleeves done in pink, white and blue yarn in fancy stitches. At the lower right—Another version of the bed capelet, crocheted of pink wick-yarn with a tiny rolled collar and tie ends. At the upper right—a fitted bed jacket crocheted in shaded effect with a hand painted flower motif in allover spaced out treatment and a bow at the neckline.

The center figure—The full length kimono in pink very soft wool, hand-crocheted with ruffled sleeves, done in a star stitch.

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

DO YOU sometimes think your child is lazy? Then you may find John's case worth looking into. He has an indolent mother, not at all the type who depends on her child's help. The lad in short, has no fixed chores, like ashes to lug out of the cellar at regular intervals or windows to clean. Seemingly, he is free to do as he pleases. But actually he cannot call his time his own, though he has more time for idling than most other children. As a young child John displayed an unusually active imagination. His jabber-jabber at play was delightful. But now he is eleven, and for many years has been in the habit of keeping his thoughts to himself. At play with other children he can be as noisy as they. But most of his time is spent quietly pouring over some book, usually a favorite becomes irritated by his inactivity. "Nothing to do, John? Believe me, you have the life of Riley!" If this were all, Johnny could overlook the interruption and go back to his day-dreaming. But it would not be Johnny's mother's way of training him. She must get abusive. "You are lazy, good-for-nothing. Doesn't it ever occur to you to offer to help your mother?"

No, it doesn't. In fact, it can't. Children are creatures of habit and training. They do not assume responsibilities of their own accord. A plea to "help your mother" is a cry in the wilderness. Be specific. Assume that he would help willingly, if you asked him. Humor him, show him how, and don't overwork him. Helping, remember, must offer some fun or satisfaction or else he won't want to do it again. Also the day-dreamer is frequently "born tired," due to glandular disturbances, or he may have some other ailment. Therefore, before charging a child with laziness be sure he is well and that he has no emotional complications due to a wrong attitude on your part.

MODERN WOMEN

By MARIAN NAYS MARTIN

An Old Man's Darling, Or a Young One's Slave? Is a Victorian Question Now Out of Date

WHETHER to be an old man's darling or a young man's slave, was one of the dreary alternatives the dear departed Victorians wrestled with in their time. It never seemed to occur to them that marriage with a young man needn't mean a slavery, or that marriage with an older man necessarily insured one of being his darling. Old men may be exacting enough to make slaves of their entire families, and young husbands may be, and often are, slaves to their wives. So what?

"Dear Mrs. Martin: What do you think of a seventeen-year-old High School girl marrying a forty-year-old bachelor? Well, that's just what's about to happen in our home town. She is a good-looking girl, and no doubt could have younger admirers, but this is her first boy friend, and she seems very fond of him. At first her parents were very much opposed to her keeping company with a man old as her father. This caused her to go away from home to see him. The parents soon relented and they all go places in the family car now.

"He undoubtedly is sincere and wants a fireside companion in his autumn years. But Mrs. Martin, don't you think when a young girl has never had her finger, she would grow tired in a few years and want younger companionship? Interested?"

I AM afraid that I think the chances are against such a marriage being a success. However, there are always exceptional cases, and let us hope that this one in which you are so interested will be an exception. It is again a matter for youth to mate with age. Twenty-three years is bound to mean a tremendous difference in the viewpoint of the individuals and in their ideas of what constitutes happiness.

A man of forty can hardly be called old, excepting, of course, as compared to seventeen, yet his ideas of enjoyment and his viewpoint of life are sure to be quite different from that of a girl in her teens. Therein lies one of the great menaces to their happiness. Unfortunately, the span of years which divides them cannot be bridged, nor does it decrease with the years. The girl of seventeen married to a man of forty has greater chances of happiness than the same girl at twenty-seven married to a man fifty, and certainly much more than a woman of thirty-seven mated with a man of sixty. After all, there is no guarantee that she becomes an old man's darling, even though that role had no distant for her.

Obviously, a girl of seventeen could hardly be expected to have any judgment. I consider it a great reflection on a man of mature years to have persuaded her to marry him. And something of a reflection on her parents for allowing the association to reach the point where there was any question of such a possibility.

SO YOUNG a girl should be protected against herself. The experienced man, as any bachelor of forty certainly comes under that head, who would so far take advantage of a girl's inexperience as to marry her despite the opposition of her guardians deserves any unhappiness he gets. It's the girl who is, of course, to be pitied.

I have known of relatively happy marriages where such a discrepancy of ages existed, but it was because the persons involved were exceptional, the woman a home-loving type whose life was centered in her children. The man was peculiarly unselfish and adaptable. One with a jealous disposition could hardly bear the natural appeal of youth to his young wife. A man has to be capable of self-effacement before he has a ghost of a chance of happiness in a marriage with a woman young enough to be his daughter.

Older men very often make a strong appeal to serious-minded girls, especially girls who have never known the companionship of a young man. Perhaps every young girl passes through such a phase, but it is one through which she should tenderly be guarded. It's really only a very conceited and selfish man who has any illusions of being able to make a much younger woman happy.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, or laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.
For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feelings is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.
If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Your skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.
It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, acting when it comes to making the bile flow freely.
Just don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the label. Request a substitute. See at drug stores. ©1931 G. M. Co.

Violence Feared In Lock-Out

Union, which is affiliated with the I. L. A., has been attempting to organize 300 men employed in our warehouses. Apparently very little headway has been gained.

UNION DEMANDS

"At noon today a representative of the W. C. U. and a representative of the I. L. A., neither of them employees of this company, called upon us and demanded the privilege of sending their agents into our warehouse during working hours for the sole purpose of enlisting employees for their union. This privilege was refused.

"At one P. M. today 13 men, whom we now are informed are members of the union refused to come to work under orders of the union representatives.

PICKETS PRESENT

"Pickets from other localities, not residents of this city, are patrolling the streets and preventing by intimidation and coercion our employees from entering the plant.

"The sheriff's office is cooperating in every way to maintain law and order but under the circumstances and in view of our unwillingness to subject our employees and the loyal citizens of the community to intimidation and possible violence we have decided to shut down our plant until intimidation and coercion ceases."

FIEST STRIKE

Taylor said that cargoes now intended for the plant will be routed for eastern ports through the Panama Canal. His statement claimed the company had never had a strike, walkout, or other labor disturbance since 1905.

"We pay the highest wage of any sugar refinery in the world, 50 percent higher than the present NRA code under which sugar refineries are operating. Our lowest wage, rate in the warehouse is 65 1/2 cents per hour," Taylor said.

"OPEN SHOP"

He said the company's policy regarding unions "has been one of open shop and no employee ever has been asked whether or not he is a union man."

Unconfirmed rumors prevailed that members of the I. L. A. might make some move throughout the bay region in sympathy with the striking union workers at the plant.

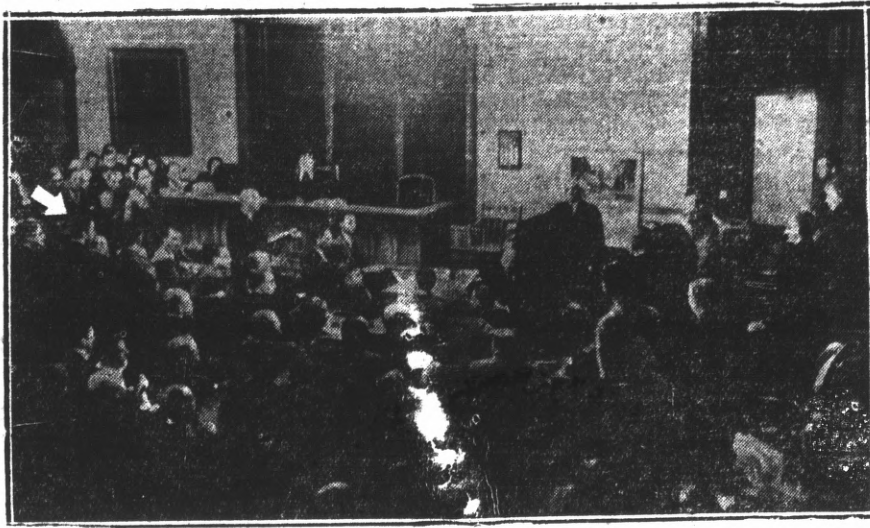

The 15 men discharged, according to plant officials, were let out because of curtailed operations. Last summer's bloody marine strike along the Pacific coast was precipitated largely through demands of the I. L. A. workers in San Francisco and other ports.

Tense Moment

HERE IS the dramatic moment awaited by the world when the Hauptmann jury returned its verdict of first-degree murder against Hauptmann. The jury being polled by the clerk, is standing at right. Justice Trenchard is at his desk rear center, and Hauptmann, guarded and manacled is indicated by arrow.

was not made known.

JURORS THANKED

Attorney Thomas M. Carlson of defense counsel in a very gracious manner thanked the jurors for their verdict and District Attorney Francis P. Healey also praised them for their consideration and courtesy.

Comment was freely and favorably made concerning the able efforts of both Carlson and Leo Sullivan, the attorneys who put up such a able case in behalf of Mrs. Zimmerman.

DRAMATIC PLEA

In a voice that rose and fell like a sobbing woman's breast, Leo Sullivan, chief defense counsel for Minnie Zimmerman, alleged husband killer, presented his plea to the jury this morning.

"What Minnie Zimmerman is today," he told the court in ringing tones, "her husband made her. Seven years ago when he took her for wool or wool, bad or good, he chose the path which she has followed. He moulded her life. Her present position at the bar of justice is his responsibility."

SCORNS MERCY

"Sometimes I have wondered, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, if I am dreaming this case! Is it possible," he murmured, "that this woman is on trial for her life with only insinuations against her? The prosecution has proved nothing against her. They have only insinuated. I would not descend to beg for mercy—I only want justice!"

He outlined his version of the law in the case, explaining that he believed the defendant had a perfect right to defend herself from death or severe bodily injury.

At one time Sullivan requested that she rise to show her lack of inches in comparison to the six feet of bone and muscle that marked her husband. She faced the jury, her face puffed and tear stained, her eyes flushed and her chin set firmly to keep back emotion.

RE-ENACTS SHOOTING

Cleverly he re-enacted the shooting scene demonstrating on the person of Harold Jacoby, assistant district attorney, his premises for believing that the deceased had risen to his feet at the time of the shot.

"The bullet took an upward course," he said, yanking Jacoby's head to an erect position "proving that the gun was fired as Zimmerman, a tall man, was on his feet and turning toward the defendant. If he had been sitting down with his head laying on the table, the shot would have taken a direct course through the back of his head and out," and he pushed Jacoby's head to the table to demonstrate his theory.

"These beatings, according to Mr. Jacoby," he continued "diminished in severity to the defendant as time went on—that is, she became used to them. Could you, ladies and gentlemen, become accustomed to broken bones, sprained ankles and twisted backs?"

"He (Zimmerman) thought it was right to throw this woman to the floor and to grind his heel into her as if she were a venomous snake?"

"And this knife—the prosecution thought they had better do something about it, so they endeavored to prove that it was some kind of a soft knife, one that did not cut easily."

Francis P. Healey in his final plea derided the idea of a knife, picturing Zimmerman as an ardent gun enthusiast, a man not likely to resort to a knife and a man not to be feared in regard to that kind of a weapon.

DEFENDANT SORBS

Mrs. Zimmerman, in her place at the counsel table, began to cry unobtrusively at the beginning of Sullivan's plea and continued for about 30 minutes.

At one time Sullivan requested that she rise to show her lack of inches in comparison to the six feet of bone and muscle that marked her husband. She faced the jury, her face puffed and tear stained, her eyes flushed and her chin set firmly to keep back emotion.

DENOUNCES WITNESS

Earl Morrell of El Cerrito, Wednesday's rebuttal witness for Healey, came in for a scathing indictment by Sullivan.

"And this 'two-gun Morrell' that was introduced by the prosecution! He is what is called a 'pulpitor'. He was introduced in to the case at the last moment to save it. He was a last hope. And—he lied. I would hate to have it said that I sold my soul for a couple of used guns and I fear that is what this man did."

"He stated that in June of 1934," he heard Mrs. Zimmerman threaten her husband. He kept that a secret for many months and only brought it out in conversation with Mrs. Charles Zimmerman after the trial had started. All I can say for Mr. Morrell is that he certainly can keep a secret!"

Wednesday Morrell admitted that two days after Zimmerman's funeral he had been given two of the deceased's guns by a member of the Zimmerman family.

DERIDES "LOVE AFFAIR"

Sullivan also mentioned the so-called love affair hinted by the prosecution.

"As for John Zimmerman, this 68-year-old man, said to be attentive to Mrs. Zimmerman, ladies and gentlemen, surely you will not check your intelligence outside the door and go for such garbage as that!"

HOURLY EXPECTED DEATH
Sullivan also stated that if Zimmerman had been shot in the back of his head, the chair would have fallen as he fell.

"I thoroughly believe that this defendant expected her husband to kill her at any moment. I believe Zimmerman's mind was so wrecked by liquor that he was ready to kill anyone who interfered with him. God couldn't help this woman. The only person who could have helped her that night, Vincent McNally, had already refused to interfere. She had only herself—and the gun. The law has always given a human being the right of self-defense and Mrs. Zimmerman had every right to invoke the law in this case."

CLAIMS DEFENDANT LIED
"Mrs. Zimmerman lied to you," stated Healey as he opened his last plea, late in the morning. She lied in every step of the case. She conveniently couldn't remember on cross-examination and she was able to enumerate her actions perfectly when questioned by her own attorneys."

He called attention frequently to the comparative inexperience of himself and his assistant, Jacoby, pitted against the formidable Carlson and Sullivan.

"They blocked us in every step, with every witness," he asserted.

OBJECTION STOPS ARGUMENT
Carlson objected. Judge Johnston sustained the objection saying:

"Any blocking in this case was done by me. I stopped your witnesses from giving improper testimony and the responsibility is mine."

PLANNED CRIME, HEALEY SAYS
Healey painted Mrs. Zimmerman as a deliberate murderess who awaited her opportunity to commit "the perfect crime."

"Is this woman to be freed to indicate that any woman may, with impunity, kill a human being and, with a good lawyer, go free?"

"There was no reason at any time why Mrs. Zimmerman could not leave her husband. She frequently left him and returned to him. By her own testimony, she returned, not because she was afraid of him, but because she loved him."

"Had she wished, she could be standing in this court today asking and receiving a divorce instead of being on trial for her life."

"We do not ask the death penalty," he explained, "but we do ask that this woman be punished for her crime."

"We do not know," he said, "what kind of a man Wesley Zimmerman was before he married this woman."

CARLSON AGAIN OBJECTS
Tom Carlson objected to discussion of subjects that had not previously been introduced. He was sustained by the judge.

The prosecution ended its case about two o'clock and the case went to the jury shortly before three o'clock.

THE INSTRUCTIONS
Judge Johnston's instructions included exposition of the law of self defense and stated that the defendant was entitled to act on the appearance of danger. He further made clear that the defendant was not forced by law to retreat from her home; "her castle" he termed it.

"To excuse you must believe, beyond a reasonable doubt, that she feared for her safety and life and that her action was not taken in revenge or retaliation for cruelties inflicted on her."

He did not avail himself of the opportunity to comment on the evidence.

however, it naturally follows that the public is entitled to know in what particulars he was recalcitrant to his trust and when such an official is removed at the instance of the grand jury it is up to the grand jury to make known the facts; otherwise the suspicion is aroused that the facts on which the action was predicated will not bear scrutiny.

CAPITALIZING SECRECY

Certain elements in this county are capitalizing the McCord incident and throwing out intimations that the secrecy observed is for some ulterior and not wholly commendable reason. We know this is not true. Although the grand jury is a secret body, when it acts on a matter the veil of secrecy should then and there be removed as in the case of the returning of an indictment when the causes therefore then are made known with the voting of the true bill, and presentation to the court.

EXPLANATION DUE

As a matter of justice and fair play we feel that an explanation is long over-due from the grand jury. We recognize the soundness of the policy that in certain matters secrecy is vital and essential, but in other cases we are just as firmly convinced that publicity is the medium which should be employed instead of misunderstood silence.

WHY?

While on the subject of the grand jury there is another matter to which I desire to make reference—that is the rumor which is being circulated quite generally that intimations have been given members of that body that it would be just as well if investigation of the social service be carried no further and that their task is done. Here again the public figures as an important factor, for if the task has not been completed the inquiry should be carried on and a complete picture of conditions be furnished us in the form of a report.

EXPENSE, POOR REASON

Complaint that enough expense has already been incurred is a very poor argument and will not stand up under examination. We are entitled to know just how our affairs are being administered and outside of a few people, I cannot believe that the expenditure of a few dollars to effectuate that result will be condemned. No public matter should be ended until all the facts are gathered and made known and those who would cease their investigating labors at the instigation or intimation of any person are not keeping faith with the people.

circle" route. He will climb to 30,000 feet in the first half hour, possibly lift the plane gradually to 40,000 feet and nose her down within sight of New York.

HIGH SPEED

Engineers who have mapped out the flight, figured air resistance, on a basis of decreased pressure, would increase normal flying speed from 225 miles an hour to 350 miles an hour. They believe Post's plane will exceed this figure, perhaps surpassing 400 miles an hour. Sunday, he attained 300 miles per hour in a test with his regular landing gear.

The stocky, dark-haired flyer will be cased in a rubber suit with an aluminum helmet. A generator in the cabin will supply oxygen under pressure through an inlet under the helmet. The plane is insulated against the bitter cold of the upper air, which will probably range around 67 degrees below zero at a height of eight miles.

ORR SHIFTED TO NEW SERA PROJECT JOB

nunist leader and wife of Paul Orr, had been employed on an Alameda county project and that when he Alameda county SERA officials were informed that her husband had a SERA job in Richmond, immediately ousted her.

When local veteran and patriotic organizations learned that Orr had been given a key position here, they immediately launched a protest to Glenn Stout, who heads the SERA activities here. Stout replied that he could do nothing about the matter, as the government had ruled that work relief should be given to every needy person, regardless of race, color, creed or political affiliations. He declared that his hands were tied in the matter, but admitted that he had given Orr the job.

Fred Y. McLaughlin, SERA administrator for California announced that something would be done about the matter at once. Nothing more was heard except that Stout questioned by telephone, declared that the "status remained the same."

It was learned yesterday, however, that Orr had been switched to his new job on February 15, exactly a week ago.

BIG INCREASE IN GAS TAX IN JANUARY

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 21.—California's gasoline tax for January has reached a total of $2,002,383.93, or $402,193.74 more than the tax for the first month of 1934. This gain of 15 per cent was announced here today by the State Board of Equalization when assessment of last month's tax of three cents per gallon on motor vehicle fuel was completed.

Analyzing the statistics, the board said: "Although there was some fluctuation in fuel tax returns for the months in 1934, that year as a whole, marked a gain over 1933 of a little less than one per cent. December 1934 collections were 1.5 per cent more than those for the last month of the previous year."

"Now that the first month of this year has shown a comparable increase, we are encouraged to believe that 1935 gasoline taxes may exceed $40,000,000, as contrasted with a yield of $39,625,055.32 for 1934."

Administrative expense of the Board is extremely low, requiring less than two-tenths of one per cent of the tax paid. Re-funds for non-highway uses, however, absorb approximately ten per cent of collections and the Board cautions that even with a total yield of $40,000,000 for 1935, the net gasoline tax proceeds for road work may not be expected to exceed $36,000,000 during the year.
